Dear Class of 2012

I feel fortunate to be associated with this class of individuals as my first graduating cohort as the Principal at Fitchburg High School. Without having had the opportunity to see you all grow from your first days as bewildered freshmen to your final days as confident, accomplished graduating seniors, I have been so impressed with this group of people over the course of this school year. As a class, you have welcomed me with open arms from the first day of school to the senior reception to the faculty to the Pep Rallies in the fall and winter. As a group, you truly embody the full meaning of the word class. Whether on the playing fields, on the stage, in the classroom, or out in the community, collectively you have demonstrated class in all that you have done and do. As an example, when the canned foods drive was announced I remember speaking to the seniors first to discuss the plan to compete with Leominster. I remember showing a chart that showed how Leominster had 800 more students than us at Fitchburg High. I also remember seeing the looks of determination and pride when we laid out the challenge. Three weeks later we had collected more than three thousand food items for the community. This was an amazing result that ultimately showed that Red Raider Pride is alive and well at Fitchburg High School.

There have been so many fine accomplishments by the members of this class that it would be impossible to list them all. To the faculty and staff of Fitchburg High School, each member of this class is a success story that is only now beginning to be told. Each member of this class has contributed something lasting to the overall experience that has been shared here at Fitchburg High School. Each member of this class has demonstrated what class can really mean.

I can remember during my own graduation sitting in a gymnasium chair in Fitchburg myself and wondering, "What am I going to do tomorrow?" The fact that I now have the good fortune to represent all of you is an indication of the power of "tomorrow." Simply put, graduation is a milestone and a celebration of all that you have accomplished, but it is also the beginning of many "tomorrows." Life is challenging and at times difficult. That being said, success and the pursuit of happiness are possible for anyone who wishes to engage in the chase. There are more than 220 individual "tomorrows" in the FHS class of 2012. As a school and community, we are proud of your accomplishments and we implore you to follow your own path and make your "tomorrows" all that you hope they will be. Congratulations class of 2012 and take pride in the fact that you join 148 FHS graduating classes before you who are now Red Raiders for life. Best wishes for the future.
